xm radio is great the way it is. there is no reason to monkey around with it. it's not their or our fault that they went out and did something good for america listeners when you didn't have the incite or the guts to do it first. we should not suffer because you didn't see the vision and follow through. leave it the way it is and let the people what started a good thing continue to do it their way. thank you for your time. maybe if you wise up and look ahead, you can learn something from these people.
